Educational, Career & Technical School Counselors

"What do you want to be when you grow up?" It's one of those questions we get asked repeatedly. Many of us need help finding an answer—even people who are already grown up. That's where educational, career, and technical school counselors come in. They know the questions to ask and the information to provide in order to help individuals arrive at the best choice. They also help students jump academic and personal hurdles in order to reach their goals.

If you love helping others and can work on your own and as part of a team, a career as an educational, career and technical school counselor may be for you.

Counselors provide academic and career counseling. Most work in schools—from elementary schools to universities. Those who work outside of schools are usually called career counselors.
