Security Guards

Security guards are everywhere, it seems, and with today's increased security concerns, their numbers are growing. A security guard's main job is to patrol an area and to assist when trouble breaks out. While some guards basically stay in one spot, keeping a close watch on things, other guards are more mobile. And property protection is not their only job: some guards keep watch over private information, such as computer codes.

Are you physically strong and observant? If so, a career as a security guard may be for you.

Security guards protect property, people and information. Many patrol an area and provide assistance if trouble occurs.

Are You Ready To...?

- Spend long hours on your feet
- Think and act fast when trouble occurs
- Watch closed-circuit TV screens
- Write reports
- Conduct security checks
- Deter or detain criminals

It Helps To Be...

Mentally alert and able to think fast on your feet. But this isn't a job for excitement seekers; security guards need to have a high tolerance for routine.

A Day In The Life...

- Monitor and authorize entrance and departure of employees, visitors and other persons to guard against theft and maintain security of premises
- Write reports of daily activities and irregularities such as equipment or property damage, theft, presence of unauthorized persons or unusual occurrences
- Answer alarms and investigate disturbances
